ADELAIDE firm Candetti Constructions has won a $10 million contract to build a new police complex at Roxby Downs.

Candetti had already built two police complexes, at Christies Beach and Mildura, in Victoria.

Executive chairman Alex Candetti said the Roxby Downs complex would have features including police accommodation, holding cells, forensic crime-scene facilities, secure parking and new police training areas.

"Candetti is very proud of its reputation for excellence," he said. "We are delighted to be able to assist this rapidly developing region of South Australia with a number of new projects that have been made necessary as a direct result of the town's increasing population and development."

The station is due to open late next year.
